
Title: CrawWorth's Journal

Author: The Currator: replicated

I have begun this journal as pieces of information begin to fit together. 'Tis my hope that this will be of aid to ye.

Though my captivity was some weeks ago, I happened to jar loose an important bit of memory.
During the last few days i was help, some high ranking members had been to see me. I was half passed out from beatings and lack of food.
Mayhap I had even been mildly poisoned to help them better able to control me. Thinking I could not hear and unable to speak freely in front of mine guards, their conversation took place in mine "quarters". I will scribe what i recall of their words:

"We waste time looking to that long dead fool for guidance. We know now from whom he received the spell. Any fool could have been in his place. We must not appear as such."

"Aye, 'tis quite true."

All must know we are following a specific path - not blindly lashing in ignorance." Ye both know my mind on this.

'Tis why this meddler shall live. When he regains his mind, he will tell all of our new determination. As well as our new name
- The Followers of Armageddon."

As I ink this, I now realize that they were referring to me, CrawWorth, as the meddler who will announce this new name for them.
Perhaps their renewed vision will provide the insight they seek, but 'tis my thought that they are but knaves with a longer name.

I have finally stumbled upon a source of information that could lead me directly to the Followers of Armageddon.
Ironically it was greed which brought him to me. Thraal Veese, a wretched thug,
approached me soon after the earthquakes. He told me he could show me a meeting place the
Followers of Armageddon
use. He also wasted little time before naming his price. A hefty sum of gold. I was able to talk him down a bit, before I finally agreed to his price. I could not afford to let such a strong potential clue pass me by.
Plus, if he was conning me, it would be an easy thing to exact justice against Thraal.
I am telling ye this so that ye might continue searching for the
Followers of Armageddon
in mine absence. Thraal told me I could find him at the shattered Skull tavern. Seek him there.
Mention my name and that ye seek the same information in my place.
He has already been given his gold, so don't let him try to squeeze more gold out of thee. Tell him that you know he has been paid ! Thank ye, and good luck in finding the Followers of Armageddon.

-CrawWorth